- Required credits to graduate with this degree: 120
- Required credits within the major: 39
- This program requires summer terms.
- Degree: Bachelor of Science

The BS in English prepares students to succeed in professional organizations in myriad fields. Concepts learned and skills developed through the English major will be advantageous in a wide range of employment situations, such as education, media, business, and in technical writing, proofreading, editing, publishing, freelance work, and any career requiring skills in analysis, problem-solving, research, or written and verbal communication, such as paralegals, newsletter editors, critics, marketing coordinators, proofreaders, researchers, librarians, managers, sales associates, and media analysts. Substantial numbers of English graduates find work in business, law, ministry, libraries, and other applied fields. A degree in English can also prepare students for graduate study in English, humanities, law, and medicine. English graduates will gain an understanding and appreciation of the English language, develop critical thinking and theoretical application skills through the study and critique of literature, and gain insight into the importance of diversity. The required minor or double major in another field allows students to further focus their professional career preparation. Program outcomes for graduates: • demonstrate proficiencies in the intensive writing processes through invention, organization, drafting, revision, and editing for professional presentation • use authority, point-of-view, and individual voice and style in personal and professional writing • demonstrate multicultural awareness of the scope and variety of literary works from around the world, literary movements, and literary theories • locate, evaluate, and synthesize in a responsible manner material from diverse sources and points of view, and understand those works as expressions of individual and human values within global contexts • think critically, analyze, interpret, and articulate an informed personal reaction to world literature through writing, discussion, and presentation • participate effectively in groups with emphasis on listening, critical and reflective thinking, and responding

The need for graduates with skills to streamline global pursuits of companies that trade, manufacture, or use contract manufacturing globally is growing. The International Business major is designed to ensure that students cultivate their global mindset. Classes like international business cultures and etiquette, international business law, international financial management, international marketing, international business management, and senior seminar in international business strategy are combined with field experience in international business and/or study abroad, which are included in the curriculum to broaden graduates' understanding of global business operations. Opportunities to travel and study outside the United States allow students to develop skills for functioning in different cultures, societies, and economic environments, and to understand a wide variety of international business practices. Many different positions are available for graduates of international business; for example, supply chain management, operations management, human resources management, sales and marketing, financial management, as a contract worker, or as an entrepreneur. Positions in international business will be focused on management of foreign nationals working in the US, or US workers working in a foreign country. The other aspect of international business will focus upon the negotiations between your company and representatives of another country who will be the intermediaries between your company and your ultimate consumers. Increasing demand for high quality international business graduates is driving the upward trend of salaries paid. The curriculum allows students to incorporate subjects focused on their specific interest and international positions in marketing, financial management, supply chain management, technology services, human resource management, and many other traditional business support and leadership occupation. Graduates could also work at Federal Agencies including the International Trade Administration and the Foreign Service as part of the US Department of Commerce. Graduates that complete the International Business B.S. will be able to:

* apply analytical and critical thinking skills, utilizing an understanding of general business principles and practices
* demonstrate ethical leadership and effective teamwork in given business scenario of a global and diverse environment
* integrate technology and computer software applications against existing and future business challenges
* apply written, oral, and non-verbal communication skills in personal and professional settings
* articulate the core management functions of planning, organizing, leading, and controlling across all enterprise operations
* understand the international context of finance, management, marketing, economics, accounting, and technology
* evaluate the global forces that shape our world in socio-economic cultural and political contexts
* integrate general and international business skills for effective problem-solving
* apply cross-disciplinary qualitative and quantitative information to opportunity identification and problem resolution
